Professional Experience

Don obtained a Honours B. Comm from University of Manitoba in 1974 and a MBA in Finance from York University in 1977. Don has been in the investment industry since 1974. His career includes two years as an analyst at the Bank of Canada and nine years in the investment department of Scotiabank. At Scotiabank, he received broad-based career experience to equity, bond and pension fund management issues in increasingly more senior roles. In 1986, he joined Hodgson, Robertson, Laing, an investment counsellor, where he was responsible for equity strategy, private wealth management and institutional client service. He has been with YMG as a portfolio manager, servicing high net worth clients, since the acquisition of his firm by YMG in 1995. He is actively involved in his church, serving on several of its committees.
